"QUARRIES REGULATION ACT."

January 23rd, 1931.

HIS HONOUR the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, pursuant to section 6 of the "Quarries Regulation Act," being chapter 52 of the Statutes of British Columbia, 1929, has been pleased to establish the following regulations governing the workings of quarries, effective January 31st, 1931:—

1. No magazine for explosives shall be maintained on any quarry property except with the written permission of the Inspector of Mines. The site of this magazine and the style of structure shall be subject to the approval of the Inspector. Where practicable, the site of the magazine must be distant at least four hundred feet from the quarry or works or any public highway. The magazine shall be constructed of materials and in a manner to ensure safety against explosion from any cause, and shall be either so situated as to interpose a hill or rise of ground higher than the magazine between it and the quarry and works, or an artificial mound of earth as high as the magazine and situate not more than thirty feet from it shall be so interposed.

2. Cases containing explosives shall not be opened in the magazine, and only implements of wood, brass, or copper shall be used in opening the cases. No scraps or broken portions of cartridges shall be placed in or left lying on the floor of the magazine or store.

3. No explosives in excess of a supply for twenty-four hours shall be taken into the operating part of a quarry, and no store, for twenty-four hours' supply, shall be established without the approval in writing of the Inspector of Mines, who shall prescribe such conditions in connection therewith as he may deem necessary. When a quarry is closed down all explosives shall be disposed of and all unused explosives removed from the quarry.

4. No naked light shall be taken into any magazine or place where explosives are kept. No person shall smoke in a magazine or place where explosives are kept or while handling explosives.

5. The superintendent in charge of a quarry or some other responsible person or persons delegated by him shall make a thorough daily inspection of the condition of explosives in or about the same, and shall make an immediate investigation when an act of careless placing or handling of explosives is discovered by or reported to him.

(a.) Any employee who commits a careless act with an explosive or where explosives are stored, or who, having discovered it, omits or neglects to report immediately such act to an officer in charge of the quarry, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and the officer in charge of the quarry shall immediately report such offence to the Inspector of Mines or to the constable of the county or district in which the quarry is situate.

6. No building for thawing explosives shall be maintained in connection with any quarry except with the written permission of the Inspector of Mines. The site of this building and the style of structure and equipment shall be subject to the approval of the Inspector. The building shall be under the direction of the superintendent or some person authorized by him. The quantity of explosives brought into any thawing-house at any one time shall not exceed the requirements of the quarry for a period of twenty-four hours, plus the amount that it may be necessary to have thawing to maintain that supply.

7. In no case shall powder be thawed near an open fire or a steam-boiler or by direct contact with steam or hot water, nor shall any electrical device for generating heat be allowed in the same compartment with explosives.

8. A reliable recording-thermometer shall be kept in the room in which explosives are thawed and the record thereof kept, but in the case of a small quarry the Inspector of Mines may give permission, in writing, to use a maximum and minimum registering-thermometer on condition that a daily record of high and low temperature be made and kept on file.

9. No drilling shall be done in any hole that has been charged or blasted.

10. When a blaster fires a round of holes he shall, where possible, count the number of shots exploding. If there is any report missing, he shall report the same to the quarry foreman or shiftboss. If a missed hole has not been fired at the end of a shift, that fact, together with the location of the hole, shall be reported by the quarry foreman or shiftboss to the quarry foreman or shiftboss in charge of the next relay of workmen before work is commenced by them. In case of a miss-fire shot, or suspected miss-fire shot, no person shall be allowed to return to the place where blasting is being done until the expiry of thirty minutes from the time of lighting the fuse. No fuse shorter than three feet shall be used in any blasting operation.

A charge which has missed fire shall not be withdrawn but shall be blasted, and no drilling shall be done within a distance of three feet of a miss-fire shot or a cut-off hole containing explosive until it has been blasted. Every miss-fire shot shall be marked by the insertion of a wooden marker into the outer end of the hole. The foreman or shiftboss shall be responsible for directing the angle of the hole and depth to which it shall be drilled.

No person other than the holder of a blasting certificate shall remove or attempt to remove the wooden marker with which a miss-fire hole or socket of a hole has been marked.

11. In so far as possible in underground operations no blaster shall be alone when spitting fuse, and in no case shall he spit fuse without having a second light, placed conveniently close. No more than twelve holes shall be spit in any round of shots by one person.

12. The firing of rounds in shafts or winzes shall be done by electric current where such shafts or winzes are deeper than one hundred feet. In winzes or shafts which are sunk at an angle flatter than forty-five degrees electric blasting shall not be compulsory.

13. Every blaster shall, before blasting, give or cause to be given due warning in every direction by shouting "Fire," and shall satisfy himself that all persons have left the vicinity except those required to assist him in blasting.

Every blaster shall, before blasting, cause all entrances to the place or places where such blasting is to be done or where the safety of persons may be endangered by such blasting to be effectively guarded, so as to prevent inadvertent access to such place or places while such charges are being blasted.

A blaster shall not, where blasting takes place by electricity, enter or allow other persons to enter the place or places where the charges have been fired until he has disconnected the cables from the blasting-battery, or has pulled out and locked the switches of the blasting-circuit.

14. No person authorized to travel with explosives and to distribute same shall leave any explosive except in a place provided for storage of explosives. Should no storage-place for explosives be provided, he shall personally deliver the same to another authorized person.

15. All drill-holes, whether sunk by hand or machine-drills, shall be of sufficient size to admit of the free insertion to the bottom of the hole of a stick or cartridge of powder, dynamite, or other explosive, without ramming, pounding, or undue pressure. No explosive shall be removed from its original paper container.

16. No explosive shall be used to blast or break up rock or other material where by reason of its heated condition there is any danger or risk of premature explosion of the charge.

17. No explosive shall be used at any quarry unless there is plainly printed or marked on every original package containing such explosive the name and place of business of the manufacturer and the strength and date of its manufacture. Every case of supposed defective fuse, detonator, or powder shall be reported to the Inspector of Mines, with the name of the manufacturer.

Straight or ordinary dynamite shall not be used underground.

In no case shall detonators be transported in the same conveyance or carried in the same receptacle with any other explosives, safety-fuse excepted. Nor shall detonators be stored in the same building with other explosives.

18. No person shall conduct or be allowed to conduct any blasting operations in or about a quarry unless he holds either a provisional or a permanent blasting certificate. No person who is not the holder of a blasting certificate shall prepare any blast. A blaster may be assisted in preparation and firing of charges by reliable persons who are not the holders of blasting certificates: Provided always that he shall not be so assisted unless such persons are acting under his direct supervision.

No person other than one holding a blasting certificate or permit, or a person authorized by the superintendent in writing, shall in any quarry whatever open or interfere in any manner whatsoever with a box containing explosives.

19. Upon engagement a blaster shall produce his blasting certificate, which shall be retained by the superintendent until the termination of the engagement. Provisional blasting certificates shall be similarly retained by the superintendent. Permanent blasting certificates shall be obtained from an Inspector of Mines. Provisional blasting certificates valid for a period not exceeding ninety days, or until the first visit of the Inspector of Mines, may be granted by the quarry superintendent, or a qualified person authorized by the quarry superintendent. No more than one provisional blasting certificate shall be granted to one and the same person. Such certificates may be obtained in blank form from the office of the Chief Inspector of Mines. A duplicate of each provisional blasting certificate issued must be forwarded to the office of the Chief Inspector of Mines, Victoria, B.C.

20. An Inspector of Mines may grant permanent blasting certificates to persons who can satisfy him as to their fitness to receive the same. The Inspector of Mines may by an endorsement place any limitation or qualification he may think fit upon the scope of the certificate.

21. A quarry superintendent or a qualified person or persons authorized by the quarry superintendent shall not sign a provisional blasting certificate until he has, or they have, by such means as are available or by inquiry and examination, found that the applicant has a competent knowledge of blasting operations and the rules and regulations referring thereto, and that he is trustworthy and sober.

22. The applicant for a permanent blasting certificate must produce satisfactory proof that he is properly qualified to conduct blasting operations.

23. If at any time the holder of a blasting certificate issued in accordance with these regulations shall, in the opinion of the Inspector of Mines, be guilty of inattention or negligence in execution of his duties, or shall suffer from any physical infirmity likely to be detrimental to efficient discharge of his duties, such Inspector may immediately suspend or cancel such certificate.

24. If at any time the holder of a blasting certificate, whether provisional or permanent, issued in accordance with these regulations, shall, in the opinion of the superintendent, be guilty of a breach of any of these regulations, such superintendent may immediately suspend such person from duties of a blaster, and shall forthwith report any such suspension to an Inspector of Mines for such action as he thinks fit.

25. Definite instructions must be given by the foreman or blaster at the beginning of a shift or after blasting, to any person who may be required to enter a quarry or part of a quarry of any danger which might exist.

After blasting, the blaster shall see that all loose material resulting from the blast is either taken down or otherwise made safe.

26. Where mechanical drills are used in any underground operation the Inspector of Mines may, if he is of the opinion that any dust produced by the drilling operations is injurious to the health or safety of the workmen, order that all such drills shall be equipped with a water jet or spray or other appliance equally efficient to prevent the escape of dust, and of a type approved by the Inspector of Mines.

(a.) Where dust is produced in any quarry operation the Inspector of Mines may order satisfactory means of preventing the escape of such dust.

27. All exposed dangerous parts of machinery, equipment, appliances, and plant shall be kept securely fenced to prevent persons from inadvertently coming into contact with same.

The approach to the edge of quarry-workings shall be securely fenced to prevent persons inadvertently falling into such quarry.

28. Where workmen are required to climb or work on the face of a quarry above the ground or bench elevation, safety-ropes shall be provided, and it shall be incumbent on the foreman or superintendent to see that such ropes are supplied and used.

29. Where the conditions are such that the Inspector of Mines is of the opinion that a quarry-face is too high he may order that the operation be carried on in benches or sections, and may order that the face of a quarry be maintained at a certain angle from the horizontal.

30. Where the material being quarried is soft or friable the Inspector of Mines may order that stulls or sprags with suitable cap-pieces be used to keep the material in position until such time as it is to be blasted or otherwise removed, and where the operation, or part of the operation, is underground the roof and sides shall be secured, where necessary, by suitable timbering or other efficient means.

31. At every quarry the owner shall provide a good and sufficient supply of "first-aid" material and have at least one employee who is the holder of a certificate of proficiency in rendering first-aid.

32. (1.) If an Inspector, upon careful investigation, is of the opinion that a quarry or any part thereof is in any respect dangerous, or that any matter, thing, or practice done, followed, or permitted in, about, or in connection with the quarry constitutes a defect calculated to impair the efficiency of quarrying operations or to endanger the safety of any person in or about the quarry, the Inspector shall give notice thereof in writing to the owner, agent, or manager of the quarry, stating in the notice the grounds for his opinion, and shall, by the notice or otherwise, order that such remedies be applied and such provision be made for the safeguarding of those employed in or about the quarry as he thinks requisite.

(2.) If the Inspector is of the opinion that any delay in remedying such matter would be dangerous, he may order the closing of the quarry or any part thereof, or may order the stopping of all work therein or connected therewith, until the matter complained of be remedied; and in every such case the Inspector shall forthwith transmit to the Minister a copy of the order and a full report of the reasons therefor.

(3.) Any owner, agent, manager, or other person refusing or neglecting to obey any order given by the Inspector under this section shall be guilty of an offence against this Act.

33. (1.) Where in or about any quarry, whether above or underground, loss of life or any serious personal injury to any person employed in or about the quarry occurs by reason of any accident whatever, the owner, agent, or superintendent of the quarry shall forthwith communicate information thereof to the Chief Inspector or Inspector for the district by telephone, telegraph, or messenger, if such means of communication are reasonably available, and in addition shall, within twenty-four hours next after the accident, send notice in writing thereof, and of the loss of life or personal injury occasioned thereby, to the Inspector of the district on behalf of the Minister, and shall specify in the notice the character of the accident and the number of persons killed and injured respectively.

(2.) In cases where loss of life or serious personal injury has occurred in any quarry, the place of the accident shall remain undisturbed for a period of three days or until the Inspector has inspected the same: Provided that a compliance with this subsection shall not be required if it would seriously interfere with the general operation of the quarry.

34. Every person who is guilty of any offence against this Act shall, if no other penalty is prescribed elsewhere in this Act, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars.

35. Where a person who is an owner, agent, or superintendent of or a person employed in or about a quarry is guilty of any offence against this Act which in the opinion of the Justice who tries the case is one which was reasonably calculated to endanger the safety of the persons employed in or about the quarry, or to cause serious personal injury to any of such persons, or to cause a dangerous accident, and was committed wilfully by the personal act, personal default, or personal negligence of the person accused, such person shall be liable, if the Justice is of the opinion that a pecuniary penalty will not meet the circumstances of the case, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a period not exceeding three months.

36. All offences under this Act and all penalties under this Act, and all money and costs by this Act directed to be recovered as penalties, may be prosecuted and recovered on summary conviction.

37. No prosecution shall be instituted against the owner, agent, or superintendent of a quarry for any offence under this Act which can be prosecuted on summary conviction, except by an Inspector or with the consent in writing of the Minister; and in the case of any offence of which the owner, agent, or superintendent of a quarry is not alleged to be personally the perpetrator, an Inspector shall not institute any prosecution against the owner, agent, or superintendent if satisfied that he had taken reasonable means to prevent the commission of the offence.
